What do you want your students to learn from you?

“It is my deepest desire that my classroom be a place of great joy and discovery, a safe and nurturing place where each child feels loved and respected and free to learn and grow in all ways that God has for him/her.

I try to model and teach ‘habits of goodness’, such as honesty, compassion, gentleness, forgiveness, and respect. It is my prayer that the children, through my words and actions and the work of the Holy Spirit, feel the abundant love that our Heavenly Father has for them and that they come to know that He has a wonderful and unique plan for each of their lives.”
